Who We Are

The Sales Association of the Chemical Industry was organized in New York City in 1921. Our membership is primarily representative of the sales and marketing departments of companies engaged in the manufacture and distribution of chemicals and raw ingredients as well as sales and marketing departments in the allied trades that support this organizations purpose. The Association's primary goal is to encourage networking among professionals with the intention of finding ways to increase the efficiency of the sales process, foster and encourage the highest standards of sales ethics and gain recognition for chemical marketing as a noble profession of individuals who are vitally interested in the growth and wellbeing of their industry. The association brings together individuals who enhance industry continuity, growth, and welfare.

What We Offer

SACI encourages professional outreach through participation in organizational activities:

- Professional Networking
- Sales & Educational Seminars
- Joint Events with Allied Industry Associations
- Fellowship Events with our Clients & Customers

How We Select New Members

Candidates for Membership are proposed and seconded by active members. The Board of Directors then considers the submission and gives final approval for Regular, Associate or Student Membership. New members are then notified by letter of their acceptance by the SACI Chairman.

We Invite You to Apply

SACI plays an important part in the growth, development and visibility of its membership and their companies. You can enhance your success and be an active participant in the chemical industries future. Make the wise choice and join SACI today
